Sally Evans serves on WTO's e-Discovery team, helping manage projects across the firm's range of practices and industries. She brings extensive experience supporting and leading document review teams and managing quality control review, including privilege review and redaction analysis. Sally's focused attention to detail helps streamline litigation at every stage—from discovery to appeal.

HIGHLIGHTS

- Won favorable settlements in probate and guardianship cases involving heavily disputed issues.
- Successfully defended against an emergency motion to surrender collateral in a bankruptcy case and secured, along with outside counsel, a conversion to Chapter 7 and appointment of a Receiver, preserving assets for creditors.
- Helped win dismissal of over 200 asbestos claims against multiple defendants based on evidence provided in MDL conferences.
- Helped win favorable settlement on the eve of trial in a multimillion-dollar personal injury case.
- Assisted firm litigation teams with a variety of pre-trial, trial, and post-trial support tasks that ultimately led to successful litigation and settlement results in contract dispute matters. Cases ranged from environmental releases, contractual indemnification, and partnership agreements.
- Analyzed, organized, and recorded information in documents used to support pleadings, motions, expert review, depositions, settlement negotiations, and trial.
- Worked with IT staff to troubleshoot issues with review space access, reducing project downtime and allowing litigation to progress efficiently.

BIOGRAPHY

Sally Evans serves on WTO's e-Discovery team where she manages projects across the firm's range of practices and industries. She brings extensive experience leading document review teams, managing quality control review, and handling privilege review and redaction analysis. Sally's focused attention to detail helps streamline litigation at every stage—from discovery to appeal.

Throughout her career, Sally has helped clients resolve matters early in litigation, often through settlements and dismissals with minimal or no money paid. She has particular experience representing clients in complex commercial matters including contract disputes, fraud, and intellectual property, as well as in personal injury and probate law cases.

Prior to joining WTO, Sally worked as an e-Discovery contract attorney for multiple law firms where she worked on various complex product liability and bankruptcy cases. She also previously worked in the Atlanta office of a national litigation defense firm where she handled product liability, professional liability, and bankruptcy matters.
